FAHSA 2010 Outstanding Advocacy Award Presented to Moore Stephens Lovelace Shareholder

Clearwater, FL – April 5, 2010 – Moore Stephens Lovelace, P.A. (“MSL”), one of the largest Certified Public Accounting and Management Consulting firms in the Southeastern United States, is pleased to announce that Ron Shuck was presented with the Florida Association of Homes and Services for the Aging (FAHSA) 2010 Outstanding Advocacy Award. This state-wide award is presented to an individual or organization for advocating aging-services at the local, state or national level.

Ron Shuck is a shareholder at MSL and is an active member of the Firm’s Healthcare Team and Senior Housing Practice Group. Ron has over 30 years of experience providing services to the senior housing and care industries. Ron’s vast array of knowledge in the senior housing and care industry has positioned him as an industry leader and expert, as this award helps illustrate. As a recipient of the FAHSA’s 2010 Outstanding Advocacy Award, Ron has demonstrated advocacy and encouraged others to advocate on aging-service issues. Additionally, Ron has offered his support and information on strategies that individuals can use to advocate for aging issues and organized people and groups to advocate for positive change.

MSL offers auditing, accounting, tax and management consulting services, and has specialized practice groups in the areas of SEC, healthcare, not-for-profit, and governmental. With offices in Orlando, Miami, the Tampa Bay Area, Tallahassee, Florida and Macon, Georgia, MSL services clients throughout the Southeast. With over 100 professionals, MSL ranks as one of the top independent CPA firms in the Southeast. MSL meets the national and international service needs of its clients through membership in Moore Stephens North America and Moore Stephens International Limited, a worldwide association consisting of over 351 leading independent firms with 630 offices in 98 countries.
